Memorandum to Claude E. Hawley
Dear Claude:
The young lady about whom we corresponded last summer, dropped in to see me yesterday. You will recall that I had sent you a four-page outline of a proposed study	50X1
of which you sent around to a few people without much response.	50X1
is still interested in pursuing this matter further and I agreed to forward to you a 130-page paper which describes much more fully what she would like to do. This document, which she would like back eventually, is enclosed. You should use your she would like back eventually, is enclosed.	50X1
she would like back eventually, is observed any point in circulating own judgment as to whether or not there is any point in circulating such a paper to people beyond yourself. In any event, plans to drop you a note during the next two or three weeks to learn whether or not you have any encouragement to offer that might make it worth her while to come down to Washington. If you have nothing more to report to her then than you gave me last October 19, then I doubt that she will want to come.	50X1
Sincerely,
	50X1
